EGGS ABOUND

Kids had a fun-filled week with the town's Spring Break Camp, which ran from April 2 to April 9 while school was out. The camp took place in the multi-purpose room at the Didsbury Memorial Complex and was run by volunteers from Didsbury Neighborhood Place. Children got to take part in a "Crazy Hair Day", "Movie and PJs Day", a pizza party, and a special Easter-themed fun day on April 4, which had kids decorating their own Easter eggs before hunting down goodies throughout the Memorial Complex, topping off the day with a movie.

Didsbury turns off for Earth Hour 2012

Town reduces electrical consumption by four per cent during special hour

BY MADISON SAMUEL-BARCLAY
 Review Staff

Didsbury has helped to do its part in electricity reduction following Earth Hour 2012, which was held on March 31, between 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Fortis Alberta, which collects electricity consumption data each year for the special date, determined that there was a four per cent electricity reduction in Didsbury when comparing March 24 (between 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.) and Earth Hour.

The four per cent reduction is equivalent to powering 3,183 60-watt light bulbs, or 212 homes for one hour.

"Really, all across the board we saw impressive results this year," said

Kevin Haslbeck, communications advisor with Fortis Alberta. "We collected data on 43 different communities, and all of them had a reduction."

Haslbeck added that it was 7.5 degrees warmer during Earth Hour than it was on the same hour on March 24, however, which may have involuntarily contributed to the electricity reduction.

"It could have been the temperature, or it very well could have been because people were turning off for Earth Hour," said Haslbeck. "It's promising to see either way."

Earth Hour began in 2007 in Sydney, Australia, where 2.2 million individuals and over 2,000 businesses turned off their lights to take a stand against climate change and energy consumption.

It was originally planned that all of Australia would participate in Earth Hour in 2008, but Toronto signed up to take part as well, along with 35 other countries.

In 2011, 5,200 cities in 135 countries around the world switched off for Earth Hour, with some others taking part in the Beyond the Hour program, which saw lights off for longer than just one hour out of the day.

"From our perspective, customers are always looking for ways to reduce energy, and this is a good day to spread the message of how to do that," said Haslbeck. "It's about saving energy, and the stats like the ones we collect show the impact of turning off the lights just for one hour."

Peace Officer Melissa Trotter with one of the three lend-out cat traps that will be available from the town office as soon as the weather remains consistently warm. The traps are to help reduce the feral and stray cat population by finding some of the caught felines homes through the Calgary Humane Society.

Cat traps ready for loan as soon as spring settles in

Stray feline population still a major issue for Didsbury

BY MADISON SAMUEL-BARCLAY
Review Staff

Despite a few surprise snowfalls, spring is right around the corner, and with the warm weather comes a constant reminder of the feral and stray cat population in Didsbury.

To help combat the homeless feline population and help give the cats the aid they may need, the Town of Didsbury will once again be lending out cat traps provided by the Didsbury Peace Officers.

The traps will be available once the weather has been above zero degrees consecutively each night for seven days.

There will be three durable traps available that can be signed out at the town office for a $100 safety deposit.

The traps are cages with a carrier handle and a trap entrance that swings shut when a cat enters the trap in search of food and steps on a pad inside to set off the mechanism.

Once a cat is trapped, a peace officer must be called immediately to collect the animal.

If the cat is a missing pet, peace officers can return it to its home if possible, and if it is a domesticated stray, the cat will be brought to the humane society in Calgary, where it can be taken care of and adopted into a good home.

Feral kittens are often easy to tame and can be put up for adoption as well, but if the cat is too feral, it may be euthanized.

"The cat population is where it's at because people let their cats out, or people don't want their cats anymore and just let them go," said Peace Officer Melissa Trotter. "A lot of times the cats are not fixed either."

Last year, Trotter said she trapped anywhere between 40 and 70 cats in Didsbury, yet there is still a notable population of ferals and strays regardless.

"The thing is, the females aren't fixed," said Trotter. "I could catch 10 cats in a day, but there are three or four females out there that are pregnant, and they could have a litter of up to eight kittens. You just can't keep up sometimes."

Stray cats have also been the cause of annoyance for residents during the warmer months, as the felines have been known to destroy gardens and leave smells around homes and businesses.

Trotter stressed that having your pet cat spayed or neutered is a great way to help keep the stray population down, and to make sure your cat is registered with the town.

Carstairs RCMP officer logs his first shift

BY JENNIFER ISAAC
For the Review

Last week, RCMP Const. Sheldon Krasniuk logged his first shift as Carstairs' new police officer.

"I want people to know that I'm approachable," said Const. Krasniuk. "If the people of Carstairs have any concerns, they can feel free to stop me on the streets and discuss their issues and concerns with me."

"That's what I'm here for."

He stresses the fact that he's using a community-based policing approach. "My goal is to ensure the community is safe," Const. Krasniuk said.

He'll also concentrate a majority of his efforts in the school. "I'll be using a proactive policing approach, with more and more school patrols and presentations," he said. Other plans include a bicycle patrol, and he hopes to develop a school bicycle awareness program.

Although he works out of Didsbury, all his work will be concentrated in the Carstairs area. His schedule will include day shifts and night shifts.

Krasniuk has been with the Didsbury detachment for the past two years. He is originally from southeast Manitoba, near Winnipeg. Before he joined the RCMP, he was a volunteer firefighter and self-employed musician.

"I'm all over the place with hunting, fishing or anything outdoorsy," he said. "That's what I'm all about. My three sons enjoy those activities with me."

Mayor Lance Colby said he's looking forward to having a full-time police officer in town. "It's important for the town, as it continues to grow," he said. "Our goal has always been to have a safe community for families."

He outlined specific priorities that include crime prevention, education and drug enforcement. "Those are the key issues," Mayor Colby said. "We would like to see Constable Krasniuk get to know the youth in our area and be a mentor to them."

Funding for the position comes from the Town of Carstairs.

"Our total commitment to the RCMP is $150,000 annually," Mayor Colby added. "This is a good investment for the town."

Sgt. Jeff Jacobson of the Didsbury detachment said the RCMP is pleased to be providing this enhanced level of service to the community.

"Constable Krasniuk is the right fit for Carstairs," Sgt. Jacobson said. "We hope that people enjoy seeing him out and about and interacting with him."

Constable Sheldon Krasniuk is the new full-time RCMP officer in Carstairs. He is based out of the Didsbury detachment.

Candidates to engage community in coffee sessions and debate

JULIE BERTRAND
For the Review

Area residents will have two occasions to ask questions to the constituency's four candidates before Election Day.

The Olds Municipal Library has organized coffee sessions with three of the four candidates at the library.

Wildrose candidate Bruce Rowe will be at the library this Tuesday, from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., while Liberal candidate Garth Davis will have his turn this Wednesday, from 5:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m.

PC candidate Darcy Davis will be at the library on April 17, from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, Mountain View Publishing, the Olds and District Chamber of Commerce, Olds College, and ROCK 104.5/CKFM 96.5 have joined forces to organize an all-candidates debate this Wednesday at the Olds College Alumni Centre, from 7 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

Former MLA and ethics commissioner Bob Clark will moderate the debate.

Drug debate far from over

DAN SINGLETON

A recent call by several leading Canadian public health officials urging MPs to rethink the nation's illegal drug laws is likely to fall on deaf ears with the Harper Tories – especially with the Conservatives recently moving toward an even more 'tough-on-crime' agenda.

Last week medical officers of health from several provinces published an article in the national Open Medicine magazine questioning Canada's current drug policies.

The doctors say measures such as increased criminal sanctions against offenders have failed to limit the availability of drugs and have, in turn, created opportunities for organized crime.

"Basically what we're saying is that we don't think that the model we're using is particularly effective," said Dr. Perry Kendall, British Columbia's chief medical officer of health.

"In fact, there's some evidence that it's very ineffective and creates a whole class of harms which wouldn't be there if we weren't dealing with drugs in this particular way."

The doctors are calling on MPs to have another look at Canada's drug policies, and in particular whether illegal drug use should be treated more as a matter of health care rather than as a matter of crime and punishment.

With a big part of their recent agenda being the targeting of illegal drugs and those who use them, it's not at all surprising that the Conservatives do not appear swayed by the doctors' call.

In fact, the Harper government has already moved to toughen existing drug possession laws, with mandatory minimum sentences part of the federal crime bill that was given Royal Assent last month.

Yet if, as the physicians argue, tougher drug laws and penalties are not leading to reduced drug use, isn't it time to at very least examine alternative solutions?

And if those solutions could include a marked reduction in the power and control of organized crime in urban and rural communities, then all the better for the community at large.

The fight against illegal drug use in Canada has traditionally focused on ideology, with governments arguing that since drugs are illegal they should be fought with all available resources.

Yet with the fight against drugs already costing Canadian taxpayers huge amounts of money and resources, including countless hours of police time and the need to keep thousands of drug offenders in jails and prisons, doesn't it only make sense to look for possible long-term solutions?

The debate over illegal drug use in Canada has been ongoing for years. Maybe it's time for that debate to start focusing a little less on politics and a little more on dollars, cents and health care.

Town budget and debt woes

As per the Didsbury 2012 budget pages 89 and 90.

From page 89, as of 2011, we are $4.9 million in debt with an unused debt limit of $6.3 million, and with a per capita debt of $1,075 for every man, woman and child in Didsbury.

As of 2013, our debt will be $11.982 million and our unused debt limit will be -$163,102 with a per capita debt of $2,504 for every man, woman and child in Didsbury.

Over the next nine years projected, we will never be back down to our debt levels of 2011.

From page 90, as of 2011 our debt serving level will be: interest $294,000, principal $798,000, and in 2013: interest $462,000, principal $758,000.

This is all with a two per cent projected growth figured in!

Where is the growth going to come from?

On April 11, at 7 p.m. the town will be holding a special meeting in regards to Shantz Crossing. Taxpayers, please come out to speak with the town as this affects you.

Thank you,

Ric Wohlgenuth
Didsbury

National volunteer week

National Volunteer Week is a week-long celebration where Canadians pause to applaud hard-working volunteers in their communities who support many worthwhile causes.

This year, National Volunteer Week will be celebrated from April 15-21. It provides an opportunity to recognize and honour the individuals who donate their time, energy and skills to their community because they have a sincere desire to make a difference.

Ducks Unlimited Canada (DUC) is incredibly fortunate to count 6,600 dedicated people as our volunteers. This number has grown substantially since the first handful of volunteers established DUC almost 75 years ago to save dwindling wetlands on the drought-stricken Canadian Prairies. Since then, we've built a strong community of people with varying interests, united in a common purpose of conserving wetlands for waterfowl, other wildlife, the environment and people.

DUC salutes our volunteers for their dedication to wetland conservation and for inspiring other Canadians to help conserve wetland habitat across this great country. By conserving wetlands, they are helping provide essential habitat for thousands of species of plants and animals. These wetlands also help filter our water, store harmful greenhouse gasses and moderate the effects of flood, drought and erosion.

What's shocking is, despite their many benefits, Canada loses 80 acres of wetlands every day. This is the equivalent of about 45 soccer fields every 24 hours.

Today, our volunteers help us fundraise by organizing community banquets, special events and auctions. They also help teach our youth about the many values of wetlands. Our volunteers spread the word about the need for wetland conservation by encouraging their colleagues to give through our workplace fundraising program, and help cultivate major gift donations from local businesses and organizations. Additionally, they help us to advance government policies that help conserve wetlands. Volunteers are truly great DUC ambassadors.

To honour our volunteers during National Volunteer Week, we have created a volunteer appreciation video especially for them. To view the video - titled Our Habitat Heroes: DUC's Volunteers - visit www.ducks.ca.

DUC is always looking for more volunteers to join our team. To find out more, visit ducks.ca/volunteer.

Yours in conservation,

Tom Worden, President
Ducks Unlimited Canada

Commentary

The biggest carbon bomb is misinformation

MICHELLE STIRLING-ANOSH

Donna LaFromboise, William Kay and others have exposed environmentalists and the IPCC global warming scam.

These "scientists" cited their own unpublished and non-peer reviewed 'research', and acted as their own 'editors.' It has become clear that the biggest 'carbon bomb' is disinformation.

And look out if you publicly disagree with AGW! SLAPP suit coming your way to silence you - Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation. Disinformation and public myth-making have left people believing that carbon dioxide (CO2) is a pollutant. Or that carbon dioxide exists in overwhelming volume.

Carbon dioxide is a trace gas in the air - an essential one for all of life at that. In a June 2011 letter to the American Meteorological Society, Professor Emeritus Bill Gray, U of Colorado, AMS Fellow and member for over 50 years decries the hijacking of the AMS on the global warming mythology.

He points out that the modelers have misinterpreted the water feedback loop in the upper troposphere, assuming that a nominal increase in CO2 would cause a large increase in water vapour; that they have mishandled rainfall processes and that they "... lack an understanding and treatment of the fundamental role of the deep ocean circulation (i.e. Meridional Overturning Circulation - MOC) and how the changing ocean circulation (driven by salinity variations) can bring about wind, rainfall, and surface temperature changes independent of radiation and greenhouse gas changes. These ocean processes are not properly incorporated in their models."

If this is the case, you say, then why do the AGW - human-caused global warming commentaries and government climate change initiatives continue?

The answer is found in a Harper's magazine article of February 2010 "Conning the Climate: Inside the carbon-trading shell game".

In it, author Mark Schapiro tags along with an 'emissions assessor' to various global work sites. At each one this individual sets out to prove that GHG emissions do not exist, but would have if different technology had been used. The assessor then documents that whatever emissions the new technology puts out is evidence that something worse didn't happen.

That premise is worth lots of money.

Sound like a lot of hot air? If you follow the money, the trail leads straight to the UN and Wall Street...again.

The UN has established some 26 firms. They are called Designated Operational Entities. Their employees are called "validators".

They review industrial project proposals to ensure that new technology included in the project will cut emissions. These validators will later have to verify that the supposedly cut emissions didn't happen.

Then they will also prove 'additionality,' that is, that the renewable energy project would not happen without the capital generated by selling carbon credits. Shapiro cites an example where a project had a goal of not producing 67,000 tons of carbon dioxide.

Do some math. Those invisible tons of carbon dioxide are worth $22 per ton. That equals carbon credits of some $1.5 million.

Who is buying and selling these carbon credits?

Financial houses like Cantor Fitzgerald (Cantor CO2/bgc), Goldman Sachs (Blue Source) and JP Morgan (Eco-Securities).

Hey - these are the same guys that just plunged the world into a global recession with their sub-prime mortgage bundle scams - now they are literally dealing in hot air! In Europe, now traders are even stealing this hot air! Yet look - there are guides for 'responsible purchasing' of this invisible byproduct of life itself.

So many people have bought into the myth of humans causing global warming. You want to get elected? You want to sell anything these days? Put a "green" eco-tag on it and blather something about reducing emissions.

Those who object are SLAPPED into silence or grant money for research is denied. The biggest carbon bomb is that this entire 'green' industry revolves around carbon as a novel commodity, as Shapiro says - "one whose value resides entirely in the promise of its absence."

The Kyoto green priests' scaremongering has overridden common sense and science. Yet it's funny how many supposedly "green" folk in Tides or similar organizations have former backgrounds as investment managers. What's up with that?

We humble taxpayers pay the 'eco-taxes' on it all while these eco-gods, investment firms and grant recipients laugh all the way to the bank. Whatever happened to the proofs required of the scientific method? How did lawsuits and popular opinion become the means of 'rational' decision-making? SLAPP suits are the new scientific method it seems. Now 'free' speech will cost you a lot of money.

Michelle Stirling-Anosh is research associate at the Frontier Centre for Public Policy (fcpp.org)

PC candidate opens Olds office

JULIE BERTRAND
For the Review

PC candidate Darcy Davis officially opened his office on Olds' main street last Saturday.

Deputy Premier Doug Horner was present to lend his support to Davis and about 30 people attended the event.

"It is fabulous to have the kind of quality candidates like Davis that are running for our party," said Horner. "Premier Redford is extremely proud of our entire list of candidates."

Davis has already been campaigning for the last couple of months in the constituency.

"My wife and I have been out door knocking in the constituency. We are getting a good response. We know we have work to do," he said.

"We really want to hear from the constituents about what their concerns and issues are."

Because of the campaign, Davis spends more time in Olds than he does at his Acme home.

"We are not at home. We are out and about. This is what it is going to be," said Davis.

"I am making a commitment to the people in the constituency that I will get to the edges. Then, I will be in the middle and at the edges and where I need to be, when I need to be there."

Davis believes that the Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills constituency is facing five major issues: senior care, education, property rights, agriculture, and the Olds overpass. He believes that the province should build more long-term care facilities.

"We need care facilities for people with dementia, Alzheimer's, those kinds of serious concerns," said Davis.

Moreover, he wants the government to improve home care, so that seniors can stay at home longer.

Regarding education, Davis wants to update aging facilities and build new ones in the constituency.

Davis also wants to make sure that property rights are respected.

"We have some work to do around that, to make sure people understand planning and those things that will be coming forward in the future," he said.

"We have some great opportunities to conserve number one farmland, some great opportunities to set aside land for some recreation possibly."

As a farmer himself, agriculture is always at the forefront of Davis's mind.

"We need to get our markets in Asia set up and going well. We just can't take what we have got going right now for granted," he said.

"We have good prices but that might not last. We really need to keep working on agriculture, add some value here in Alberta, and keep it going."

As for the Olds overpass, Davis said he would be pushing it as hard as he can.

Both Davis and Horner answered questions from the public during the office opening.

"Our job is to make sure that Albertans have the right information, that they understand where we are going and what we stand for," said Horner.

"It is easy to understand what people are against. It is difficult to understand sometimes what people are for."

Both Horner and Davis said they were looking forward to the election.

NDP has 'practical and attainable commitments'

PAUL FREY
For the Review

The NDP has practical solutions that will help all Albertans, says Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills candidate Kristie Krezanowski.

"I think the strength is that the NDP has practical and attainable commitments that will improve the lives of all Albertans. It's a party platform that will affect all of us individually. That's kind of the perspective of the NDP, is to make the government work for us in the everyday aspects of our lives," she said.

As a parent, Krezanowski sees education - both at the early childhood level and post-secondary level - as one of the best investments the government can make in its citizens.

"There's no more important investment in our future than in the education of our children," she said.

Re-regulating electricity is another plank of the NDP platform that

Kristie Krezanowski

Krezanowski sees as important.

She said higher prices have hurt all Albertans and should be brought under control.

"The party platform is to regulate those prices again in Alberta to ensure that we have stable prices and that all of us can afford those costs ... because right now we're paying the highest real costs for power in Canada and I don't think that's the way it should be," she said.

Health care is also at the top of the NDP agenda.

Krezanowski said the party wants to improve the system so that everybody can get the access they need, when they need it.

"We want to improve on our public health-care system, to provide more responsive health care that provides both quality care inside and outside of hospitals," she said.

Krezanowski said she plans on attending all the forums that are scheduled for the riding, and is attempting to talk to as many people as possible about the NDP's priorities.

Krezanowski has a B.A. from the University of Alberta in psychology and women's studies.

She has worked with clients in the mental health, child and family services, and school fields.

She currently works for the Government of Alberta delivering front-line services, helping to connect them to the programs that would most help them with issues they are facing.

Rowe confident in Wildrose's chances

PAUL FREY
For the Review

Not only is Wildrose candidate Bruce Rowe confident that he can win the Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills riding, he is also confident his party can gain a majority of the province's seats and sweep aside 41 years of consecutive PC party rule in Alberta once the votes are tallied on April 23.

"I wouldn't be doing this if I didn't think we had a good shot at forming the next government. It's not just a matter of winning the riding here, there throughout the province, it's a matter of winning enough seats to form a majority government and I believe that's attainable. We're feeling good about our campaign, my chances, and we're hearing from a number of people that it's time for a change," he said recently in an interview with the Gazette.

Rowe has been knocking on doors for some time prior to the writ being dropped, and he said people have been giving encouraging responses, although they are undecided, he said. Rowe said that since this is the first time in a long while the PCs have had a legitimate opposition, people are giving some thought to marking their ballot beside a Wildrose candidate's name.

Rowe sees the Wildrose as going back to true fiscal conservatism that takes the tough choices and eliminates what he calls the "waste in a number of areas."

"We're back to true fiscal conservatism and I think the existing government has gotten away from that. What we can offer is what I would term as 'true democracy.' Our MLAs will go to Edmonton and we'll vote the way our constituents want us to vote," he said.

Rowe said he doesn't see any weaknesses in the party's policy or roster of candidates, saying that each person has abundant experience in a diverse range of areas.

Rowe, for example, has

10 years experience in municipal government, while other candidates have experience in other industries, such as education, the oil and gas industry, health care, among others.

"There's a broad spectrum of experience that's just waiting to get to work to make the system better," he said.

Rowe said he believes the Wildrose's election numbers of about 20 per cent of the popular vote it received in 2008 can be vastly improved. He is also encouraged by polls showing that it's virtually a dead heat with the PCs. Having said that, however, Rowe is taking nothing for granted and is running as though the party is 20 points behind in the polls. He is meeting as many people as he can and will be crisscrossing the riding over the next three weeks trying to spread the Wildrose message.

"We're approaching it ... like we're 20 points behind, and we're going all out," he said.

JULIE BERTRAND
For the Review

For Liberal party candidate Garth Davis, health care is the major issue that is facing not only the Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills constituency, but also Alberta.

"It does not matter if it's rural or city. You still have the health-care issues. We are not treating our seniors very well," he said.

"Our facilities here are a mess. They are not clean enough. They are not properly maintained."

While the Liberal party has many solutions to fix the health-care system, privatization is not one of them.

"I am totally against the health-care privatization that Wildrose is proposing," said Davis. "All it does is kill the public system."

He believes that one way of streamlining the health-care system is to adopt a health card similar to the one that's used in France.

"It's like a VISA card, with a security-encoded chip. On that chip is your complete health care history," said Davis.

"If you ever are in a car accident, what happens is you put that card into the EMS card-reader and there's your whole history. You get to the hospital, you put the card into the card-reader and there's your history."

Davis says that Albertans need to realize that under the present government, there were tremendous cutbacks to health and education.

"In education, they stopped funding maintenance and repairs for schools, colleges, and universities," he said.

Garth Davis

"That's why colleges and universities have to charge such high tuition fees because they have to get money from the students to repair and fix their facilities."

Davis has been involved in provincial politics for the past 12 years. He was the Liberal candidate for the Innisfail-Sylvan Lake riding in the 2008 Alberta general elections. He finished second, with 13.88 per cent of the votes.

"I decided to get involved because I didn't like some of the policies that were being put on by the Progressive Conservative government," said Davis.

"I have lived and worked in the area for 35 years. I know the area very well. I know a lot of residents."

Davis taught agricultural management for 35 years at Olds College and still farms 10 miles east of Innisfail.

"I have a master's degree in farming and economics," he said.

"I have also taught business management and economics. I have always been teaching in the business area."

Frequent conversations with his students have kept him up to date on agricultural issues facing farmers and ranchers.

"One thing I want to put more emphasis on are Bills 19, 24, 36, and 50 and how they attack property owners and property rights. That's a big issue for me," he said.

"The other issue is seniors, because I am now a senior. I also have an aunt that has Alzheimer's. I see the toll it's taking on her grandson, who's looking after her. The government doesn't give a lot of help."

Davis will be visiting the Olds Municipal Library this Wednesday between 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to talk with constituents. He will also participate in the candidates' debate on the same day at the Olds College Alumni Centre.

Everybody's talking about what's in the classifieds.

RCMP hosts 'Drugs 101' awareness presentation

Submitted

In an effort to raise awareness regarding drug use in Didsbury, a group of local service providers is giving Didsbury parents an in-depth education into the world of street drugs.

On Wednesday, April 18 from 7-9 p.m. in the Didsbury High School library, Didsbury RCMP members will be presenting a talk called "Drugs 101."

This presentation will address what drugs are being used in the area; their names, appearance and nicknames, and what the signs of such drug abuse are.

The presentation is for adults only, as the discussion will be geared towards a mature audience. There will be plenty of time for discussion and for questions to be answered by the RCMP.

This presentation is being offered through a partnership of local service providers, including the Didsbury Family School Wellness program, Didsbury Family and Community Support Services, the Didsbury RCMP, Mental Health and Addiction and our local schools.

For more information, please contact Andrea Caines at Didsbury High School at 403-335-3356.

Coyote spotted behind vet clinic

BY MADISON SAMUEL-BARCLAY
Review Staff

A coyote was sighted on Sunday, April 1, behind the Didsbury Veterinary Services clinic.

This was the first sighting of the animal roaming closer into the town following the winter season, and according to Didsbury Peace officers Derek Sutherland and Melissa Trotter, the coyote is on the move.

"It's not uncommon to see coyotes in rural areas," said Trotter.

The coyote had likely found a dead, wild animal or something else of interest behind the clinic, and has since left the area to continue on its way.

Solid year of play for peewee and midget teams with Rocky Mountain Athletic Association

Submitted

RMAA PeeWee Tier 1

The Rocky Mountain Athletic Association (RMAA) PeeWee Tier 1 finished the year in fifth place in our very tight division. We quickly won our first two rounds versus Airdrie and Canmore, winning both series two games straight. The finals were a best two out of three, versus Okotoks. We lost the first game in Okotoks 3-2 and came back home and won 4-3, taking the finals to a game three in Okotoks, losing 4-1. We are very proud of the players finishing second overall in league play.

We also went to Lloydminster on the weekend of March 16th for Provincials, representing Zone Six. Our team lost in the semifinals. The players had a busy weekend competing against the other top teams in the province, coming up against some pretty stiff competition. The players represented RMAA very well, playing with discipline, hard work and perseverance.

We want to take this time to thank all the sponsors who helped to donate a team flag, zone banner and matching track suits for the players. Your generosity is greatly appreciated. Our sponsors were: PM Promotions, Albrite Lighting, Mountainview Liquor, Westview Insurance, Didsbury Arena Concession, Dy-Kel Services, Train Oilfield Services, Fountain Tire, Hooson Transport and Ruby Dale Asphalt Works.

Overall, this was a very successful year for all the players and they should be very proud of themselves for all they have accomplished this year. We would also like to thank the coaching staff for their hard work and dedication.

Exciting season for RMAA

Midget Tier 1

The RMAA Midget Tier 1 Renegades have completed the 2011/2012 season after an exciting year. They had a young team that matured throughout the season and got the chance to represent their zone in provincials. Lac La Biche proved to be fantastic hosts of the provincial event and the boys enjoyed the chance to play in the brand new top of the line facility. The boys competed well in round robin play, despite being one of the youngest teams at the tournament. They didn't make the semifinals due to their first game upset against Provost.

In regular season, the Renegades had a strong start to the year with an early record of 7-1-1. After a loss to Strathmore, the team ended with a season record of 12-5-3. Finishing third in Tier 1, the Renegades came up against sixth place Cochrane in the first play-off round. Boys fought hard but lost 5-2 in the first game.

They fought back in game two with a 3-0 shutout win to force game three. The Renegades lost a vital defensive player early in the game and lost out 7-3 to Cochrane.

The Renegades are hoping for another great season in 2012-2013.

SPADY, Velma Jeanette

Velma Jeanette Spady (nee Janzen) went to be with her Lord and Saviour on March 31, 2012 at the age of 86.

Velma was born in Didsbury on September 1, 1925 to Peter and Lena Janzen. She lived and worked in Didsbury until 1955 when she married Raymond Spady. They resided in Calgary for two years until they moved to the farm east of Carstairs. They farmed together owning half of Spady's Poultry Farms until 1975, and then continued as grain farmers until their retirement in 1986 when they moved to Didsbury. They were blessed with two children, Laurie and Cameron. Velma was an active member of Zion Evangelical Church, teaching Sunday School for over 30 years. In 2006 she moved to the Bethany Care Home in Calgary.

Velma was a loving wife, mother and grandmother, and her small family was the centre of her life. Her children always considered her their best friend; she was always there to support and encourage them no matter how far away their lives took them and despite the physical distance through much of their lives, she was a doting grandma to her grandchildren.

She was predeceased by her parents, Peter and Lena Janzen, her loving husband Raymond in 1989, and her sister Lydia Wrinkle and 3 brothers in infancy. She will be greatly missed by her daughter, Laurie Dawn Burridge (Laurie Dwight) of Hanna, son Cameron Spady (Susan) of Calgary; grandchildren Dr. Amber Burridge (fiance Safi Saad) of Calgary, Ashley Burridge de Moscoso (Santiago) of Edmonton, Chris Hammer (Alison) of Calgary, and Kat Hammer (Pat) of Calgary, two brothers: Stan Janzen of Didsbury, Blair Janzen (Fran), of Olds and numerous nieces and nephews.

A private memorial service was held at the Bethany Care Home in Calgary on Monday April 9, 2012. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Bethany Care Foundation, 1001 - 17th Street NW Calgary AB T2N 2E5. Condolences can be forwarded to the family from www.mountainviewfuneralchapel.com. Arrangements are entrusted to Mountain View Funeral Chapel, Olds.
